

Audrey Wood (Audrey.J.Wood@drexel.edu) is Regional Coordinator for the Greater Philadelphia region and a pediatric physical therapist who lives and practices in Philadelphia. She graduated from Boston University with a Bachelor's of Science degree in Physical Therapy and then went on to receive a Master's of Science in Pediatric Physical Therapy from Hahnmann University. Audrey currently works in Early Intervention providing home and community services to children birth to three years old. She also provides ChildFind services for Early Intervention in two Philadelphia area Neonatal Intensive Care Units. Audrey previously worked for The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia providing inpatient and outpatient services including the Cerebral Palsy Clinic and Neonatal Follow-Up Clinic. Her teaching experience includes lecturing at universities and a Physical Therapy Residency Program in the Philadelphia area. Audrey recently co-authored a chapter on The High Risk Infant for Pediatric Physical Therapy.